A MESSAGE FROM OUR PRESIDENT

Volunteer leadership is a key component of any nonprofit organization's success, and your Foundation is no exception. Due to several factors that include our volunteer leadership, we grew in net assets from $400,000 in 1984 to $27,224,900 in 2024. Also, with the help and guidance of our volunteers, in 2024 we distributed a total of over one million dollars in grants to (mostly) local charitable causes and to scholarships for students from Crawford County. And one other success worth noting: according to the most recent Lumina Foundation report, the post-high school educational attainment level of working-age Crawford Countians (25-64) grew from 26.7% in 2022 to 28.6% in 2023. This was an increase of 1.9% and beat our neighboring counties (Richland 0.2% and Ashland 0.3%). This also boosted our educational attainment rank among the 88 counties from 73rd place to 66th.

For various reasons, Crawford County has seen several staff members vacate their nonprofit organization leadership roles in recent months. When that happens, healthy volunteer leadership becomes even more critical. One definition of volunteering is "to do something, especially for other people or for an organization, willingly and without being forced or paid to do it." Leadership, on the other hand, can be defined as "the ability to guide and influence a group of people toward achieving a common goal." While effective leaders often display certain character strengths such as being influential, inspirational, and collaborative, leadership can be, and often is, demonstrated by people who don't necessarily carry formal leadership titles. Just as there are many ways to help by volunteering, there are also several types of leaders. My personal favorite is servant leadership, where the leader's goal is to serve people and share power with them. Several top-ranking companies in the U.S. have adapted servant leadership, citing that the employees' increasing personal commitment and engagement in turn helps the organizations grow. There have even been books written on servant leadership, such as Laurie Beth Jones' Jesus CEO: Using Ancient Wisdom for Visionary Leadership, where she translates biblical lessons of Jesus building a thriving enterprise from 12 disorganized disciples that can be applied to any business.

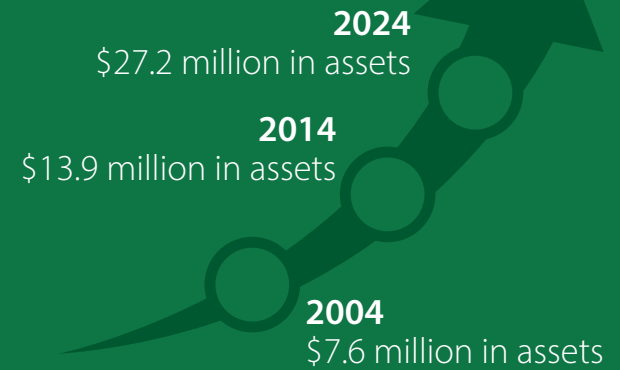

Our own volunteer leadership, also known as our Board members, recently conducted strategic planning to guide the Foundation's direction for the next five years. Given the increase in the number and intensity of natural disasters in recent years, one of the goals from the strategic plan was the development of a disaster plan. The hope is that in the event of a natural disaster so brutal that it overwhelms our first responders, the Foundation could be there as a safety net for emergency dollars in the immediate aftermath, as well as for dollars awarded through grants for rebuilding and recovery for some time after the event. Also emerging from the strategic plan was the need to begin empowering our youth by starting a youth philanthropy initiative. The idea will be to implement a grant program where the applicants are all asking for grants that benefit our local youth, and in turn local youth will be making the funding decisions on how to best help their peers. All of this will keep increasing the number of Foundation volunteers, which in 2024 totaled approximately 87 individuals without whom we could not thrive. (Nationally, roughly one-third of the nonprofit workforce is volunteers.) And the dollars to help implement these two initiatives came from a bequest whose owner was kind enough to leave us the money without any restrictions.

According to one Independent Sector national study, 57% of Americans have high trust in nonprofit organizations "to do what is right." That is more than any other sector: military (45%), small businesses (42%), media (20%), and local (25%), state (22%) and federal (18%) government. And according to Akilah Watkins, President and CEO, Independent Sector, "Nonprofits can earn public trust through volunteerism... When people serve, they often discover something essential: a shared humanity that crosses political, economic, and cultural lines... At a time when division dominates headlines, service to and with communities reminds us that we are more than what divides us... We have a responsibility-and an opportunity-to preserve and strengthen that trust in nonprofits... we can reinforce the most American of ideals: that everyone has something to contribute, and every contribution matters. Because trust is something we build together."

In closing, I am grateful for our volunteer leadership. I hope that they have experienced what numerous studies point to as the health benefits of volunteering – from lower blood pressure to reduced anxiety and depression. And while they do not receive pay for their good work, I hope that they have received the lift in spirits that comes from an "emotional salary."

Regards,
Lisa Workman, CFRE
President

This historic connection to Crawford County is well worth sharing, even though this photo was taken in Nashville and so is not eligible for the photo contest. Pictured with Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. is Dr. Everett Tilson, father of Galion attorney, Steve Tilson. Tilson was a professor at Vanderbilt University at the time, and he and King were Civil Rights activists planning sit-ins there in the 1950's. Sit-ins are non-violent protests where individuals occupy a space to draw attention to a grievance and promote change and are a tactic of civil disobedience.

Pork production is a significant component of Crawford County's economy, as is agriculture in general. Fun fact: pigs use mud to cool themselves since they don't sweat!

A storm is brewing as Marna captured these shelf clouds in rural Bucyrus. Shelf clouds are low, horizontal, and usually appear on the leading edge of thunderstorms. While not associated with tornadoes, they can indicate high winds, heavy rain and even hail. Sugar Gliders, also known as pocket pets, are nocturnal gliding possums. They like sugary sap and nectar and can glide through the air, similar to flying squirrels. This one is a pet of Raven Price, and the photo was taken at Rus-Men Farms during the 2025 Crawford County Farm Hop. Visit the 2026 Farm Hop this year on April 25 to get close up to all things animals and agriculture!

Blooming in Ohio in late spring and early summer, carnations have been cultivated for over 2,000 years. Sommar captured this one in her aunt's garden in Galion. Pink carnations are often associated with motherly love, making them an especially appropriate gift for Mother's Day!

Under the rainbow stands the Crestline gazebo! Joe shot this double rainbow after a storm. Double rainbows occur when sunlight is reflected twice inside raindrops. The primary rainbow is noticeably brighter than the secondary, and the order of the colors in the secondary rainbow is reversed. If it's true that seeing rainbows is a positive sign, then Crestline should have a hopeful future!

Lady Liberty Remembers Mural in Bucyrus was finished by artist and veteran Eric Grohe of Washington in 2001. It depicts Lady Liberty cradling a dying soldier and is surrounded by the faces of 285 Crawford County Veterans. A sign nearby erected in 2023 puts a name to every veteran's face, and their service spans the American Revolution through 2001. The mural is owned and maintained by Projects, Inc., a support organization of the Foundation. Happy 250th anniversary, United States!

The John Hopley Lincoln Highway Monument on E. Mansfield St. in Bucyrus was erected in 1929. It honors Hopley's many contributions, which include founding the Bucyrus Evening Telegraph, serving in U.S. counsel positions under Presidents McKinley and Roosevelt, and pioneering the development of the Lincoln Highway, our nation's first coast to coast road. The Earth, Wind and Flowers Garden Club oversees its beautification.

The Pileated Woodpecker is native to North America, and Rod captured this one at his home just southwest of Galion. They make rectangular shaped carvings into trees from which they either extract insects or make nests. These woodpeckers are important to their ecosystems as their carved tree cavities are then used for nests by many other birds and small mammals. The size and orientation of the woodpecker's brain safeguard it from all of the tree head banging!

A sunset for the ages was captured by Dave from his home in rural Bucyrus. At sunset, the sun is low on the horizon, which causes the light to travel through more atmosphere and be scattered by atmospheric particles. Thus, longer wavelengths (like red and orange) reach our eyes and create these bright colors. Since this farm has been in Dave's wife's family for four generations, sunsets like this have been enjoyed here for many years! This one won Dave the 2026 photo contest!

There's always light at the end of the tunnel, or in this case, tracks. Kim captured the sun setting at the end of the tracks on W. Mansfield St. in Bucyrus. During the 1800's when railroads were being built all over the state, little Bucyrus happened to be at the crossroads of two of those lines. With those railroads came industry, growth, and the ability to offer shipping to far away parts of the country.

Sandstone ledges along the Sandusky River at Lowe Volk Park can create stalactite-like formations in winter. A sedimentary rock, sandstone is valued for its durability, beauty, and suitability for both indoor and outdoor uses. The quarry in Leesville operated from about 1834-1908, and the sandstone that came from there was made into grinding machines and the original sidewalks of Crestline, among other uses.
