A MESSAGE FROM OUR PRESIDENT

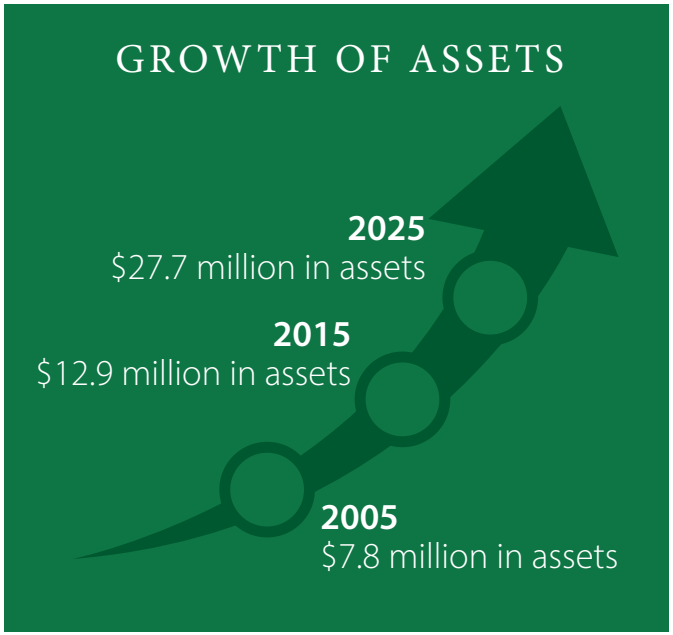

At the time of this writing, we have all been celebrating America's 250th birthday. With the vital role philanthropy has played in shaping our nation's history, we should also be celebrating Philanthropy 250! As author Jeff Raikes explains in an article published in Inside Philanthropy, Benjamin Franklin watched the wealthy give to the poor during colonial times and thought that instead, "everyday people" should organize and build institutions that served their needs. Rather than waiting on contributions from the wealthy, Franklin envisioned bottom-up philanthropy. What followed were hospitals, volunteer fire departments, Andrew Carnegie libraries (where community members supplied the books), and schools for black children in the segregated South. The idea was that self-governance by educated citizens would define true freedom, and philanthropy was part of that democratic infrastructure.

As Raikes further points out, the real work that connects people to opportunities and serves families in need is done through nonprofit organizations. He refers to them as the "connective tissue between philanthropic resources and community impact." And currently, many of them are experiencing real strain from funding cuts, partisanship accusations, and legal threats. Knowing that the important work of nonprofits requires public trust at a time when many Americans do not even know what foundations do, the Council on Foundations has begun a "Generosity Builds" campaign, and they are encouraging foundations to be more vocal in sharing their stories. Similarly, the National Council of Nonprofits has launched a campaign called "Nonprofits Get It Done," and they not only are demonstrating the vital role nonprofits play in American life, but are also encouraging you to contact your legislators and remind them of how nonprofits are essential partners for stronger communities.

So what's been happening in our community foundation neck of the woods? For one, our Development Committee (there go those awesome volunteers again) came up with core values for the Foundation: Accountability, Collaboration, Inclusion, Innovation, and Integrity. These are meant to compliment our Vision and Mission Statements and to remind us all of the attributes we wish to prioritize as we go about the Foundation's work. In addition, in 2025 we distributed a record $219,100 in scholarships and $439,196 in competitive, impactful grants to local non-profits. These latter gifts varied from support for education, community development, the arts, and health and human services.

Two of those grants deserve a side note. In the wake of the passing of American entertainer and philanthropist Dolly Parton, you should know that the Foundation is a proud supporter of the local affiliate of the Dolly Parton Imagination Library, where registered children ages 0 – 5 years receive monthly, free books. As United Way of NC Ohio recently pointed out on LinkedIn, 40% of 4th graders in our five-county region are not proficient in reading. Free books can be one weapon in the arsenal to improve that statistic.

"IF WE DEFINE PHILANTHROPY ONLY AS MONETARY DONATIONS, WE MISS THE RELATIONSHIP AT ITS HEART, WHICH, AS THE ETYMOLOGY ALWAYS INSISTED, IS THE POINT."

-MICHAEL D. LAYTON, PH.D., W. K. KELLOG COMMUNITY PHILANTHROPY CHAIR AT THE DOROTHY A. JOHNSON CENTER FOR PHILANTHROPY

In addition, we granted money to the American Red Cross in 2025 to conduct six blood drives in Crawford County. The Red Cross has been sounding the alarm that we are in a blood crisis, the most extreme blood shortage, and this can result in delayed surgeries, postponed cancer treatments, and strained emergency care. And our gifts to support their lifesaving blood drives are only as successful as the number of YOU who show up and donate blood! (Yes, that's a call to action!)

We community foundations and non-profits will try to keep showing and sharing needs and success stories, but we need your help. In the spirit of Philanthropy 250, this nonpartisan initiative recently launched Giving 4th. Knowing that charitable giving tends to slow during the summer months, this is an attempt to remind people to give back to their communities while they are celebrating the July 4th holiday each year. We thank you for your past and encourage your future philanthropy. After all, philanthropy, or the "love of humanity," isn't new; it's been part of our American story for 250 years.

Regards,
Lisa Workman
President

Layover at Port Bucyrus – Crawford County Airport. A CJ3, this jet is owned by a Chicago area company who flies into Bucyrus several times a year. In 2024, Bucyrus received a federal grant to help fund a new terminal, as the one from the 1950's was outdated and energy inefficient. With additional community support to help get it built, the new terminal will provide better and expanded services for pilots and passengers.

Valentine Skunk - In Ohio, February is breeding season for skunks. Mostly nocturnal, their long, curved claws allow them to dig for grubs, roots and insects, as well as to dig dens. When skunks feel threatened, they will run if there's time. If not, they will accurately spray their pungent musk onto targets up to 15 feet away. Rod often sees skunks under his bird feeders looking for easy meals, which is where he spotted this one at his home in rural Galion.

Hiding in Plain Sight - To protect itself from predators, the gray tree frog has the ability to camouflage itself from gray to green or brown, depending on the environment around it. This explains its name: Hyla versicolor. They mostly live in trees and come down to breed in pools or ponds. They survive winters by freezing and then thaw out in the spring. Julie spotted these on landscape stones and a plastic chair!

The Trumpeter Swan – North America's largest native waterfowl can weigh as much as 26 pounds and have wingspans reaching up to 10 feet! Once nearly extinct due to overhunting, they have made a remarkable comeback thanks to conservation efforts. They get their name from their loud, trumpet-like call, which can be heard up to two miles away!

Happy Mooooother's Day! Kate caught this tender moment between a cow and her calf at her family's farm. As of the 2022 Census of Agriculture, there were 6,663 cattle and calves in Crawford County. The maternal bonding shown in this photo is accentuated by the appearance of a rainbow seeming to protrude from the mom's head, creating a mystical "unicow!" This picture won Kate the 2027 photo contest!

The Crestline Comeback Continues, as this mural was designed and paid for by caring Crestline residents as part of the downtown revitalization. It greets people entering the village heading north on the State Route 61 overpass. Crestline sits near the high point of Ohio's watershed, with falling rain heading toward Lake Erie on one side and the Ohio River on the other. This distinction thus led early settlers to name their home "Crest Line."

During America 250 (2026), members of the Crawford County History Alliance planted patriotic flowers to celebrate our nation's 250th birthday, including at the Great American Crossroads Mural in Bucyrus. The mural depicts the view as it would have been in 1919, when a military convoy that carried future President Dwight Eisenhower passed by on what would become the Lincoln Highway, the country's first coast to coast highway. Artist Eric Grohe even depicted Eisenhower in the mural in his army uniform. In 1928, Boy Scouts erected stone markers along the route that state, "This highway dedicated to Abraham Lincoln."

Carle's Bratwurst has been family owned since 1929 and is the last of Bucyrus' original eight bratwurst makers. It began as a small neighborhood grocery and evolved into a meat-market and deli. With the birth of the Bratwurst Festival in 1968, these hand-linked brats became even more popular. Much to the delight of the German immigrants who settled there and their descendants, Bucyrus became known as the "Bratwurst Capital of America."

Pollinators please! This common buckeye butterfly is pollinating a zinnia in Jenna's yard outside of Tiro. Common buckeyes are so named because the eyespots on their wings resemble the eyes of male deer (buck's eye) and are meant to scare away predators. Common buckeyes will migrate south for the winter, returning in the spring. Pollinators enable the reproduction of over 80% of flowering plants and help support our food supply.

With a career spanning over four decades, Crestline graduate Robert Kurtzman has made a name for himself as a writer, director, producer, and award-winning special effects makeup artist. Robert's talent in creating realistic prosthetics, creature designs and fabrication, and animatronics is world renowned. His work can be seen on many of Hollywood's biggest blockbusters like Scream 1-2-3, From Dusk Till Dawn 1-2-3, Wishmaster, the Haunting of Hill House and many more. In 2014, Robert created a Freddy Krueger makeup for Robert Englund for a photo op event which was captured here by his partner, Crestline graduate Marcy King. Current Crestline residents, the two run their own makeup fx business.

Stairway at Sandusky Headwaters Preserve leads to the source of the Sandusky River. This preserve across from Lowe-Volk Park in Crestline was formed from funds through the H2Ohio project, a water quality initiative that addresses severe water quality issues throughout Ohio caused by a variety of issues like failing drinking water and sewage systems and fertilizer runoff. Open for passive recreation only, this 38 acres of beautiful wildlife makes for great nature watching.

Snowy Owls spend summers in the Arctic and migrate further south in the late fall/early winter. Although seen more frequently around Lake Erie, they also like agricultural fields and land around airports. Unlike most owls, snowy owls hunt during daylight hours. They prefer low perches like this fence post along U.S. Route 30.
